

Applied Technology Final Project

In this project you will use Google Apps to design, create, and evaluate a consumer product survey. Your presentation for the survey is due on Friday, November 13th at the start of class.

You will be evaluated on three key factors:

1. Your appropriate use of Google Docs
2. Your data collection and analysis
3. The quality of your presentation.

While you are working in pairs, each student will receive an individual grade. It is important that you utilize the collaboration tools so I can see what parts each student completed in the project.

The directions for this project are at the link below. You must review all resources and video training before you begin the project. Because we are using Google Docs, you may work on this project from home if you would like. There will be no late work accepted or excused for this project.

To begin, click the link. To turn your project in, you will share it with me.
